RANDOM MONDAY

Over on our Facebook page, we like to do this little thing called Facebook Random Question of the Day. And it's exactly that: random. Here's our question: About how many text messages do you send in an average month? Check out some of the responses we received. Want to be a part of our social media revolution and see your thoughts here next time? Like us at facebook.com/theredeye.

Krissy Wolf: Anywhere from 4,500-8,000. Haha always more when I start talking to a new guy :)

Wayne Whitlock: As many as it takes.

Aderrick Bobo: I just looked at my bill...5121, just last month

Maria LaMothe: Let's just say I could never not have an unlimited text package.

Jessica Kearns: wow definitely off the meter!! i have unlimited texting so id say close to 10,000. i can send 500 in A DAY!!! :)

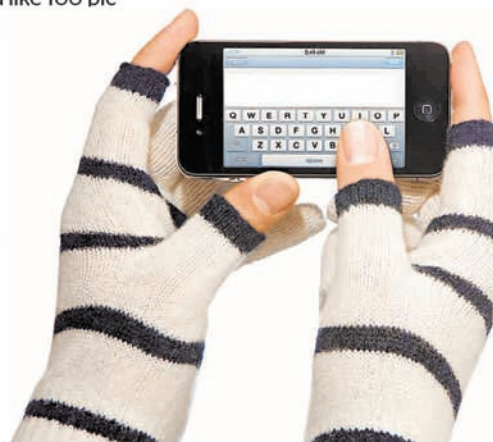

Bruno Pieroni: It depends on how much I don't want to actually speak to people.

Erica Marchand: close or over 10,000 text and like 100 picture messages.

Captainn Thisguy: About 2,000 texts a week. 8,000 a month. 80 words per minute. 19 years old.

James Ess: ZERO. i can't stand texting.

James Neville: In this economy i can't afford texting i prefer to take advantage of my unlimited calling.

Rapture rewind

Preacher's followers deal with life after Judgment Day dud

Harold Camping is o-for-2 on doomsday predictions.

As 6 p.m. came and went in every time zone Saturday, the self-described prophet who heads the Family Radio Network of Christian stations was proved wrong on his second prediction of Judgment Day. (He made the same claim in 1994.)

While Camping has not been seen since the Rapture that wasn't, his followers—some of whom quit their jobs in anticipation of the event—have expressed shock, disappointment and even resolve. Here are how some of them felt after (another) false Judgment Day:

"You can imagine we're pretty disappointed, but the word of God is still true. We obviously went too far, and that's something we need to learn from."

—Tom Evans, who acted as Camping's PR aide in recent months, to the Los Angeles Times

Ready to cheer a gay sports star

I hope Derrick Rose is gay.

Wait, that sounded weird. Let me qualify that: I wish Derrick Rose were a homosexual. I would enjoy it if he preferred to have sex with men.

When Phoenix Suns president Rick Welts told The New York Times last week that he is gay, it was met with a collective shrug by most. However, his reluctance to out himself even in 2011 is a powerful reminder that professional sports remains one of the last and strongest bastions of homophobia in American culture. Hell, with the end of "don't ask, don't tell," the military may become a more progressive, LGBT-friendly institution than the MLB, NFL, NBA or NHL.

Logic tells us there are many gay players competing in all four of these leagues, yet they remain in the closet, likely for myriad reasons. Yet this is 2011, and it's time someone did it. It's time a high-profile professional athlete revealed himself to be gay because as soon as he did—and he didn't lose endorsement deals and the world didn't erupt in a fury of orgasmic destruction—it would allow other players to take the leap. And before you knew it fans in the Deep South could find themselves cheering for a pitcher with a lethal fastball who also happened to be gay.

I admit that as a straight, white, semi-toolish guy, I have no idea what kind of personal burden it is to come out of the closet. The best I can do is admit in print that my favorite pair of jeans, which I purchased in a thrift store in New Orleans and quickly became my go-to pair (you know, that one pair you always wear out because you know they kind of highlight your small, apple-like butt?), are in fact a pair of Express women's jeans. That's right, a women's 10R—whatever the hell that means.

Nevertheless, it's unbelievably important that someone finally take the plunge, and that's why I wish Derrick Rose were gay (and that he occasionally smiled). A former NBA bench-warmer named John Amaechi came out after he'd left the league (he wrote a book called "Man in the Middle," which I recommend), but his impact on sports' consciousness was minimal.

Rose—one of the most impressive players to enter the league in the past decade—is at a stage in his career where he is not only beloved but virtually unimpeachable. Obviously, I don't actually think Rose is gay, but someone of Rose's stature would go a long way toward teaching the homophobia-prone sports world that gays have psychopathic moves to get to the hole too (no pun intended—I thought I'd get through this whole column without having to say that).

Because American attitudes toward gays and lesbians have shifted so drastically just in my lifetime, I think we occasionally forget how hard that movement has been.

(Ah, dammit, no pun intended.)

Rousing return

Rev. Michael Pfleger calls reinstatement 'the greatest gift of all'

Chicago Tribune

For the Rev. Michael Pfleger, returning to the pulpit of St. Sabina Catholic Church to celebrate Mass on Sunday, his 62nd birthday, was a holy blessing.

"God gave me the greatest gift of all," Pfleger said to a standing ovation of more than 1,000 parishioners. "To be able to be back here this morning with you."

Sunday marked the return of the fiery priest to St. Sabina after he had been suspended by Cardinal Francis George for making statements that were perceived as threats.

And it was as if Pfleger had never left. When he took to the pulpit, Pfleger sang along with the choir and the parishioners as they all reached their hands to the heavens. At one point, Pfleger sat at the keyboard during the service and played "Holy, Holy, Holy," his head moving to the music.

And his words roared out of him, sweat dripping down his face as he hinted in his homily at the turmoil of the past three weeks.

"Life will bring you drama. But if you're in [God's] presence, you will be able to deal with all the drama that wants to occupy your heart," he said.

George reinstated Pfleger as St. Sabina's pastor Friday after suspending him April 27, citing Pfleger's statement that he would look to work outside the Catholic Church if he were transferred. Pfleger on Sunday apologized to his congregation for the drama.

"I am sorry to have put you through this," he said.

Pfleger also expressed his gratitude to George and encouraged parishioners to do the same.

For those in the pews, Pfleger's return was a joyous occasion, especially because it was his birthday.

"There couldn't have been a better gift for him or myself," said Tina Wallace, 33, of Auburn Gresham.

And most parishioners said they didn't have any hard feelings toward George.

"I'm glad he and Father Pfleger were able to reconcile their differences and move forward," said Mack Julion Jr., 23, the director of the church's young adult ministry.

As for Pfleger, he said the turmoil of the past several weeks hasn't changed his mission.

"I'm back," he said.

"I love being a Catholic priest, and I love being in the church. Like any family, we fight. We disagree."

Officials: Clean up city's river

Chicago Tribune

The weather was nice for a boat ride Sunday on the Chicago River, but the wafting stench of sewage provided an appropriate backdrop for the message of the politicians on board.

U.S. Sens. Dick Durbin (D-Ill.) and Mark Kirk (R-Ill.) announced their bipartisan support for the federal Environmental Protection Agency's demand for improved water-quality standards for the river, beginning with disinfecting wastewater that is regularly released into the waterway.

"Chicago is the last city in America that has not tackled this situation," Durbin said at a news conference at the North Branch Pumping Station on the Northwest Side, following the boat ride. "Come on, we can do better."

He cited state estimates that more than 70 percent of the water in the Chicago River is partially treated sewage.

No one argued with that figure. Supporters in attendance included Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan; Susan Hedman, the federal EPA's regional administrator; U.S. Rep. Michael Quigley; and two members of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago's elected board, Debra Shore and Michael Alvarez.

The river "is a great treasure," Quigley said. "We shouldn't use it as a toilet. Safe water and clean air have to be at the top of our priorities."

Officials addressed confusion over cost estimates of a cleanup, which have varied widely depending on the source. The EPA has estimated it would cost up to $72 million to disinfect wastewater discharged into the waterways from the Calumet and North Side treatment plants. The water district has predicted it would cost at least $1 billion, a number federal officials say is inflated.

Kirk cited an earlier EPA estimate of $242 million, based on an agency-funded study that calculated the cost to clean up three treatment plants, not two.

Spending money to clean up the river, Kirk said, would spur economic benefits through increased tourism and added public safety.

"I would like to see the federal government help," he said. "I am in favor of setting this as a goal."

Missing model found inside submerged car

Chicago Tribune

The body of a woman who was found in a submerged car in the North Branch of the Chicago River was identified Sunday as a missing 25-year-old model who had gone missing last week.

An autopsy conducted Sunday also determined that Irma Sabanovic of the 1900 block of West Wood Street drowned, though officials could not determine whether the manner of death was accidental, homicide or suicide. But a police source said foul play was not suspected.

Sabanovic's body was found in her blue Ford Focus when it was pulled from the river near Goose Island on Saturday.

Friends of the woman said she had a "dignified, quiet beauty" and had spread miss-

The car was discovered in the river near Elston Avenue and Blackhawk Street, two blocks from the night spot where Sabanovic was headed.

Sabanovic lived on a quiet, tree-lined street in West Rogers Park, which is home to many families from the young woman's native Bosnia.

Mo. town flattened

4 A tornado smashed buildings, snapped trees and tossed tractor-trailers like toys as it touched down in Joplin, Mo., just before 6 p.m. Sunday, causing an unknown number of deaths and injuries.

"I would say 75 percent of the town is virtually gone," said Kathy Dennis of the American Red Cross.

The twister was part of a line of severe weather that swept across the Midwest on Sunday, prompting tornado watches and warnings that stretched from Wisconsin to Texas. High winds and possible tornadoes struck Minneapolis and other parts of Minnesota, leaving at least one person dead and injuring nearly two dozen others, police said.

Authorities in Joplin were contending with multiple reports of people trapped, as well as significant structural damage to St. John's Regional Medical Center, which was hit directly by the tornado, city officials said. CNN affiliate KSHB said there were reports of fires throughout the hospital.

Missouri State Highway Patrol dispatcher Charles Bradley said the precise extent of the damage was not immediately known, but it appeared that the devastation could rival the destruction left by a deadly twister that hit Tuscaloosa, Ala., last month.

More than 30 people perished in that storm.

Arrest made in baseball beating

5 L.A. police arrested a suspect early Sunday in connection with the brutal beating of a San Francisco Giants fan at Dodgers Stadium in March, a police spokesman said. Bryan Stow, 42, was beaten into a coma on March 31 in the stadium parking lot after the opening game of the Dodgers' season.

Bombs kill 19 in Baghdad

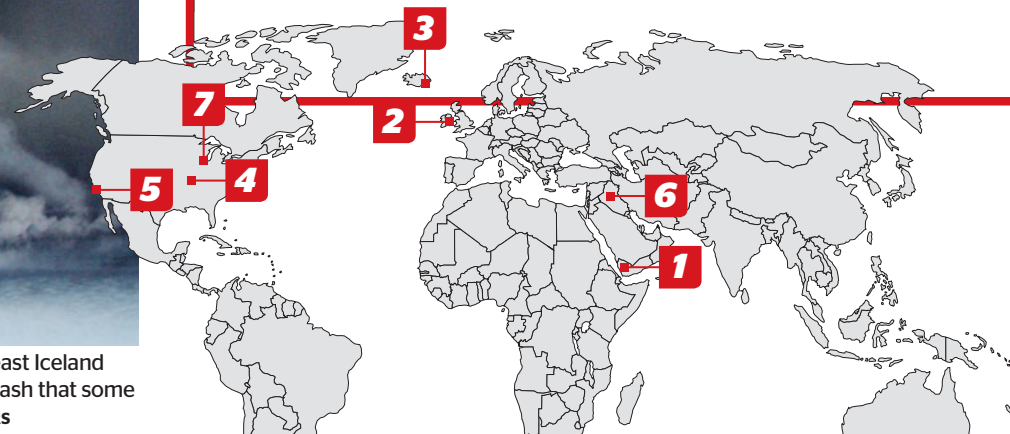

6 Seventeen bombs exploded Sunday within hours of one another in Baghdad, killing at least 19 people and wounding more than 80, Iraqi authorities said. The bombings came the same day Britain wrapped up its military mission in Iraq, leaving a predominant American military.

Former Minnesota Gov. Tim Pawlenty announced Sunday that he is seeking the 2012 Republican presidential nomination. He made the announcement in a video on his website in a preview of a formal announcement Monday. Other prominent Republicans, including Indiana Gov. Mitch Daniels, have decided not to join the race.

FIRST

MIAMI 18, BULLS 15

8 Luol Deng

5 Joel Anthony
Joel Anthony takes a no-look pass from James for an emphatic dunk that cuts a three-point Bulls lead to one with 6:46 left in the quarter. Not pretty, but it's still two points.

6 Chris Bosh James draws the defense to him on a penetration in the lane, so he feeds it to wide-open Bosh (left) under the basket for an easy slam that gives the Heat a 15-11 lead. US PRESSWIRE PHOTO

SECOND QUARTER

MIAMI 43, BULLS 40

Dwyane Wade
Wade takes a pass from Mario Chalmers from the 3-point line and crams a two-hander that gives the Heat a three-point lead with 5:10 left in the quarter.

Chris Bosh
Bosh streaks to the line and James feeds him for another easy two for Miami's much-maligned forward. These two have a basketball bromance brewing during this game.

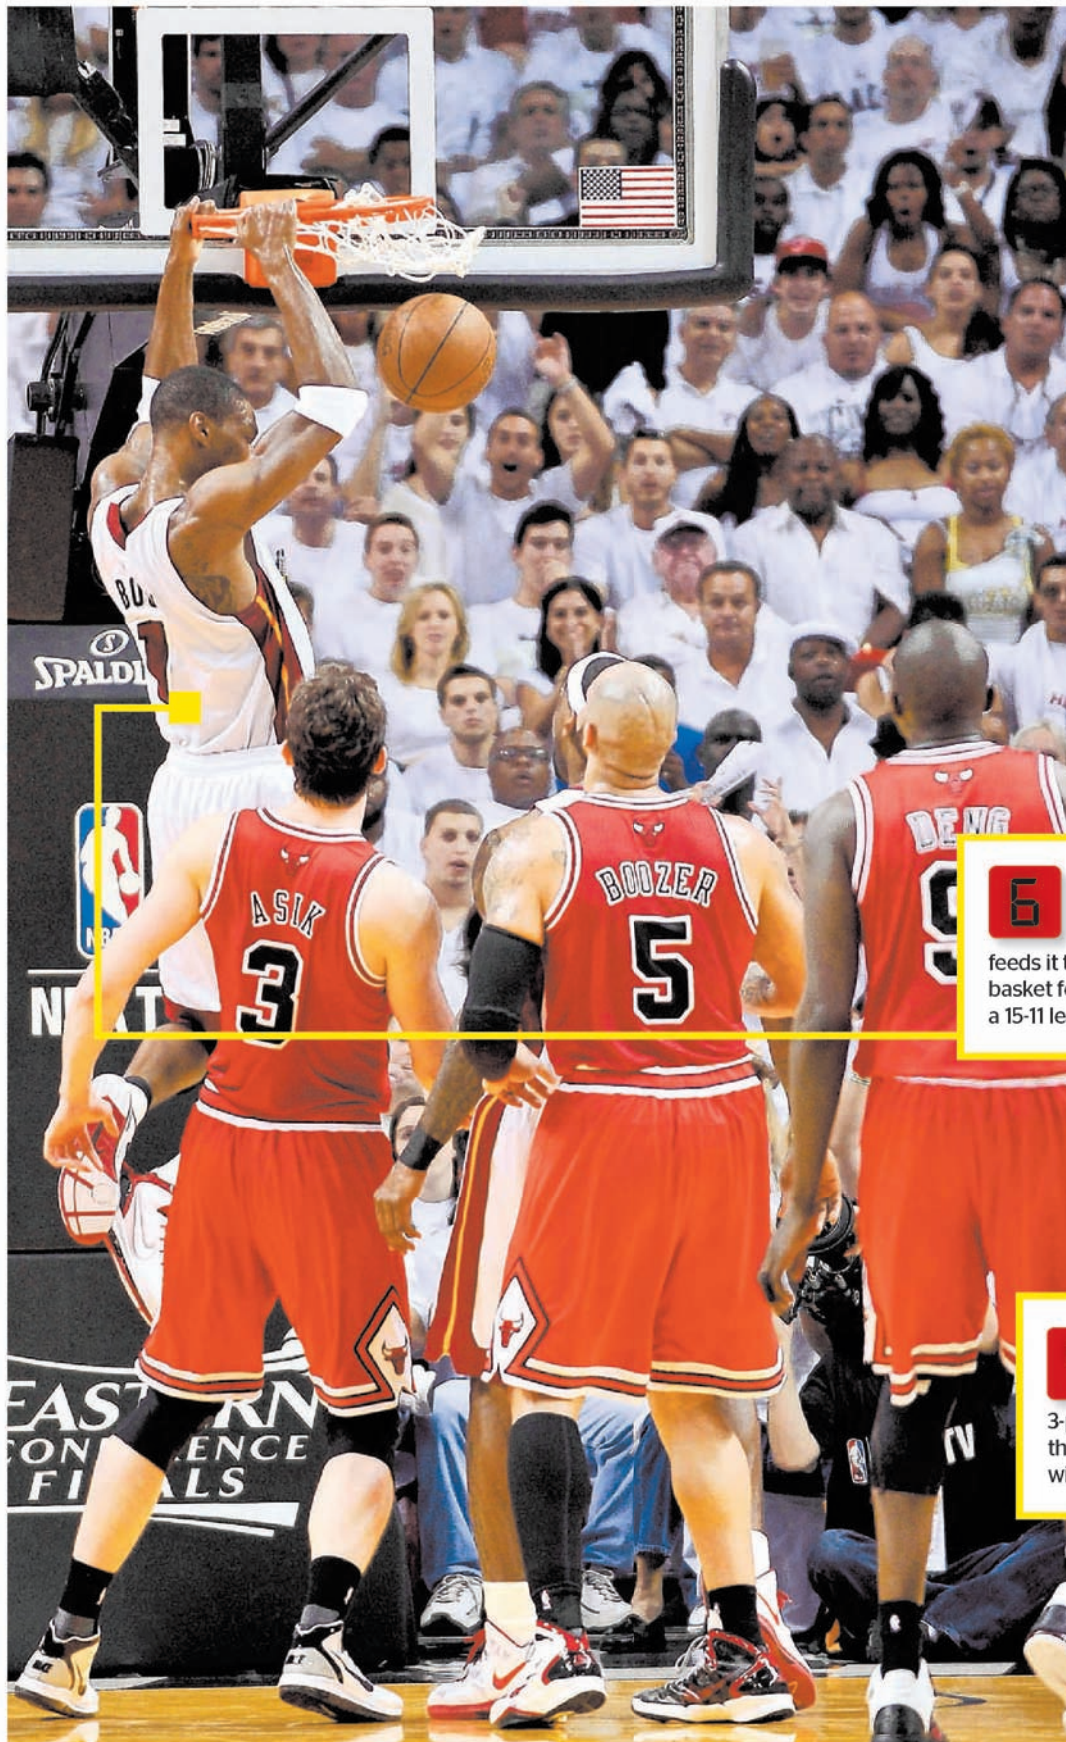

Did
Noah
use gay
slur?

Joakim Noah (above) could face league discipline after apparently directing a profanity followed by a gay slur toward a fan Sunday during the first quarter of Game 3 of the Eastern Conference finals.

Noah drew his second foul at the 6:26 mark, sending the Bulls starter to the bench. There, TNT cameras caught Noah turning to the crowd and apparently using the same slur that the Lakers' Kobe Bryant directed at official Bennie Adams during the regular season.

Replays of the broadcast posted to YouTube did not include clear audio of what Noah said, in part because TNT analyst Reggie Miller was discussing the impact of Noah's early exit on the Bulls and the game through Noah's brief exchange.

RedEye

When the highlight reel is compiled at the completion of the Bulls-Heat matchup in the Eastern Conference finals, it's likely to be loaded with monstrous dunks.

Just two games into this series, there had been several rim-rattlers to remember. Taj Gibson owns two of them: One as he steamrolled Dwyane Wade to the hoop and the other a one-handed jaw-dropper off a C.J. Watson miss from 3-point range—both in Game 1. Another, unfortunately for Bulls nation, is Udonis Haslem's fast-break one-hander from an impossible angle in Game 2.

So RedEye was one Dunk Duty on Sunday night during Game 3 at American Airlines Arena in Miami.

Here are the night's dunks that caught our attention—and their scores on a 10-point scale, just like the dunk contest.

SERIES SCHEDULE

Game 4: Bulls at Miami, 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, TNT

Game 5: Bulls vs. Miami, 7:30 p.m. Thursday, TNT

Game 6: Bulls at Miami, 7:30 p.m. Saturday, TNT*

Game 7: Bulls vs. Miami, 7:30 p.m. May 30, TNT*

*If necessary

THIRD QUARTER

MIAMI 68, BULLS 65

6 Carlos Boozer
Boozer (above) hammers down a one-handed jam along the baseline off a nice assist from Noah. Similar to the Noah-to-Deng connection in the first. This one ties the game at 53 with 6:33 left in the third.

FOURTH QUARTER

MIAMI 96, BULLS 85

5 Ronnie Brewer
Ronnie Brewer cuts to the hoop and takes a Derrick Rose pass from the wing for an important dunk that cuts the Miami lead to 72-68.

9 Chris Bosh
Bosh takes a pass from Wade in the post, completes a spin move on Boozer in the lane and two-hand slams it for a six-point Miami lead with 7:01 left in the game.

6 Taj Gibson
Gibson slams home two on a put-back of a Brewer miss, cutting a Miami lead to seven points and giving the Bulls some life with 2:25 left. Better late than never?

A ROUNDUP OF PLAYOFF NEWS AND NOTES

REMEMBER WHEN?

In 2007, the defending NBA champion Miami Heat were swept out of the first round of the playoffs at American Airlines Arena. Who knocked them out? The Bulls. But those Bulls were a lot different than the 2011 Bulls. Only Luol Deng played in that series. "It's a different situation and different team," he said. "This is a better team." And so are the Heat.

BOOZER'S RHYME TIME

Carlos Boozer can be heard rapping on Twista's "Winning Streak (Bulls Anthem)" released last week, and he talked about his musical debut Sunday. "Just having fun with it. I mostly just listen to music." OK then.

THE DIGIT

53.8

Points reserves are averaging per game in the 2011 NBA playoffs. The Bulls, of course, contribute mightily with the Bench Mob.

QUOTABULL

Regarding the quote attributed to me in ESPN The Magazine, I do not recall making the statement nor do I recall the question being asked. If that was my response to any question, I clearly misunderstood what was asked of me. But, let me be clear, I do not believe there is a performance enhancing drug problem in the NBA."

—Derrick Rose on the magazine story that quotes him as saying the PED problem is a "seven" on a scale of one to 10.

TEXTABULL

Whom would you rather have on your team: Chris Bosh or Carlos Boozer? Text "bulls1" for Bosh or "bulls2" for Boozer to 87708. You'll get the results instantly.

1 What is your Hate the Heat meter at?	Almost as high as it is for the dolts who canceled "The Chicago Code."	Higher than Russell Westbrook's opinion of his own abilities.	I blame hating the Heat for my missing the Rapture, so no more for me.	Like a thermometer on the surface of the sun, the top of that meter blew off a while ago.	My meter is higher than the refs. Can they please call a travel on LeBron or D-Wade?
2 What could LeBron James do to get people to like him again?	Only an appearance on Oprah's show can save him. Oh, wait ...	In order: Free nachos, bring a team back to Seattle, more free nachos.	Do like MJ and leave basketball to play baseball. Right now.	Invent a time machine and do the last two years over again, this time less douche-y.	Quit. Hold on, that happened during last year's playoffs.
3 If Derrick Rose is like a tornado, as Eric Spoelstra said, what's Carlos Boozer?	The Rapture. Notice how neither one has really shown up?	Easy: A Boo-nami.	A tropical depression (without the "tropical" part).	A slow-moving mudslide.	Thunder. Lots of noise, does no damage.
4 The Cubs' first trip to Boston's Fenway Park since 1918 was bound to lead to another century of curses.	... like watching that douche you grew up with make out with the douche you met in college.	... a reminder that some "throwback" jerseys should just be thrown back.	... a painful one for Marlon Byrd.	... better than Garrett Wolfe's trip to Miami.
5 What is Bump Day?	Not going dirty on this one, question guy. Everyone knows that's a holiday Snooki invented.	Don't know but hopefully it has to do with girls in volleyball pants. Amirite, gents?	It comes three months after Hump Day if you haven't been careful.	Nearly every day for the Cubs, as they bump another player to the DL.	If there's a tingle, it's "time to call the doctor day."

WE'LL TAKE THIS HEAT

White Sox outfielder Juan Pierre slides into home plate to score ahead of the tag by the L.A. Dodgers' Rod Barajas during the fourth inning Sunday. GETTY IMAGES

WHITE SOX 8, L.A. DODGERS 3

As weather warms, so does Sox offense in 15th straight interleague series win

So this is the kind of Sunday it was for the White Sox: Adam Dunn got a standing ovation for an eighth-inning RBI single and Matt Thornton walked off the field to victorious fireworks after saving his first game since May 11.

Yes, two of the most maligned Sox even left with a good feeling after an 8-3 victory over the Dodgers that clinched their 15th straight interleague series victory.

It seemed to be more proof that these are really the warm weather White Sox, as they finished the home stand 5-2 following a 6-3 showing on the West Coast.

"That was our excuse, because of the early weather," manager Ozzie Guillen said, only half in jest. "Now I think the weather's been nice, I think it's nicer to hit when the weather gets warm."

It was 84 degrees at game time at U.S. Cellular

Field and late spring has finally made a belated showing, much to the joy of shortstop Alexei Ramirez, who tied career highs in hits (four) and RBIs (five).

"It feels just like Cuba," said the native Cuban, who historically has gotten hot as the temperature rises.

"It makes it easier when it's warmer out," said Paul Konerko, who was hitless but had a sacrifice fly. "It's a combination of that and guys just knowing the team wouldn't go like that forever. Similar to last year, when we got off to a slow start for six or seven weeks before we really came on.

"We're not where we want to be, but we've still got four months to be where we want to be."

And while the Sox remain nine games behind Cleveland in the AL Central, at least they aren't losing ground as they had earlier in the month. In fact, they won two consecutive home series for the first time this season.

Byrd on DL

The Cubs' Marlon Byrd is headed to the 15-day disabled list after being hit by a pitch Saturday, and will be replaced by reliever Justin Berg. The Cubs had no information on the extent of his injury. The Cubs said Byrd has multiple facial fractures and will fly home with the team and see specialists this week in Chicago.

» Boston 5, Cubs 1

from news services shortstops

BEWARE OF DOG

Whizzer takes a bite out of sports

@redeyewhizzer

The Cubs had to put outfielder Marlon Byrd on the DL on Sunday after he was hit by a pitch Saturday. Word is he has "multiple facial fractures." That, folks, is what you call a literal slap in the face to a reeling Cubs team.

STOP ME IF YOU'VE HEARD THIS ONE ...

Cubs pitcher Matt Garza missed his start Saturday due to what the Cubs called "elbow tightness." Cubs fans know this as "see you in three months."

BUT WAIT, IT GETS BETTER

Rehabbing Cubs starting pitcher Randy Wells pitched for Iowa on Sunday, and he gave up seven runs on six hits with three walks and three strikeouts. Yep, he's right on schedule to join the Cubbies.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Those same Iowa Cubs lost 16-7 to Tucson, by the way. So now we know where the Cubs train these guys to be lovable losers.

IN A RUSH FOR FOOTBALL

Flipped on the Rush game Sunday afternoon while waiting for Bulls-Heat, and then it hit me: We might not have real football to watch this fall. Oh, I kid. The Rush are real. Hell, Rush quarterback Russ Michna could play for the Bears.

TREATED

Alexei Ramirez, I'll share my Milk-Bones with you anytime. Perhaps they'll put some meat on your bones.

SPORTS BRIEFS

» Garrett Wolfe, who played for the Bears for the past four seasons, was arrested early Sunday in Miami. Wolfe has been charged with retail theft, assaulting a police officer, resisting arrest with violence and disorderly conduct, according to Miami-Dade County booking information.

» Rush 69, Dallas 57

» NHL: Vancouver 4, San Jose 2. Canucks lead series 3-1.

» Northwestern product Luke Donald loses chance at world No. 1 ranking in loss Sunday.

» Bump Day qualifying at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Sunday was a mixed bag for car owner Michael Andretti. Danica Patrick and Marco Andretti qualified for the Indianapolis 500, but Ryan Hunter-Reay and Mike Conway did not as the 33-car field was set for Sunday's race.

What you really think about three new seafood restaurants

READER REVIEWS

Earlier this year, three new seafood restaurants hit the dining scene. Now that they've had some time to get their sea legs, here's a look at what readers are saying on metromix.com.

Kingfisher Seafood Restaurant & Bar

5721 N. Clark St. 773-506-7014

We say: This Andersonville reboot of Pier 5736, a Jefferson Park favorite, serves catch-of-the-day specials alongside classics such as clam chowder and lobster medallions.

You say: Mixed results.

"Kingfisher: Beautiful bird, not so beautiful food. The food ... edible fish, somewhat overly salted, but average. The salad was adequate, the bread was good [and] the butter had to be unwrapped from those little annoying aluminum packages. The food took a very long time to arrive."

—THUMBOY

"My wife and I love seafood. This place has it. Fresh and just well-prepared. The service was really great. The meal includes a potato and vegetable and a small salad. I had the coconut shrimp, which was so tasty. My wife had the fish that was cooked to perfection. Can't wait to go back."

—KSC1144

GT Fish & Oyster

531 N. Wells St. 312-929-3501

We say: The owners of Boka, Landmark, and Girl & the Goat go seaside with this River North oyster bar.

You say: Classy and delicious.

"Great classy place. Despite [the fact that] the place was packed and busy, never felt rushed, the server took the time to explain the items on the menu and helped us in deciding on the order. The food was out of this world, best oysters had in a long time. The complexity and the sophistication of the plates were incredible. All I can say is, 'A night and a meal to remember.'" —MF2000

"[It's a] beautiful open space with attractive seaside touches without being 'themey.' The sharing-size portions let you try a nice variety of creations (my friend and I managed five and still had room for dessert). GT's lobster roll is so delicious and packed with big chunks of lobster. ... Everything has some special little ingredient to snap your mouth to attention." —JEG421

Fish Bar

2956 N. Sheffield Ave.
773-687-8177

We say: The owners of DMK Burger Bar claimed the space next door for this modern spin on a seafood shack.

You say: Overpriced and maybe overhyped.

"Great beer selection, good food, but way overpriced. My husband and I dropped $65 on a very modest lunch. At those prices, I won't be back." —MARGIEMARG

"OK, I had a great time, I did; my bartender was amazing. But not worth the hype. Try it, it's true. It was yummy ... but I do like GT Fish better." —MYDOGLICKSPLATES

Calabruzzi's Cafe

3302-04 S. Halsted St.
773-247-9999

"I want this place to do well. The calamari was the best I have had in a long time ('better than Connie's' said one of my guests) and the pizza was hot, not at all greasy and tasted really good. The service was not great. It took a long time and the server did not check up on us as we were waiting. We also had to wait to pay, which is admittedly one of my pet peeves."

—OLBEAN

Antico

1946 N. Leavitt St.
773-489-4895

"This Italian restaurant was an amazing find. The service was friendly [and] made you feel at home. The food was awesome! We tried the sage and brown butter gnocchi, the cuttlefish, the Amish chicken, and the rib eye for one. Everything was amazing, seriously one of the best meals I have had in a long time." —AMYSADULE

Kanela Breakfast Club

3231 N. Clark St.
773-248-1622

Good breakfast

"My husband and I both enjoyed the kanela (cinnamon) pancakes and peppered bacon. [I] thought it took a little long for the food to come to the table, but still a pleasant experience. Will definitely return." —MARLA516

'The Real Housewives of New Jersey'
8 p.m. Mondays, BravoKEEPIN' IT
REAL

Violence! Family feuds!
Never a dull moment
with Bravo's housewives

By Leonor Vivanco

REDEYE

The backstabbing, bitchiness and brawls are baaaaack! Bravo's "The Real Housewives of New Jersey" returned last week and immediately proved why it is one of summer TV's guilty pleasures. If you're addicted to the insults, shouting matches and fighting that make for must-see reality TV, you can get your fix with this pop culture juggernaut.

In the Season 3 premiere, viewers met two new housewives: Teresa Giudice's sister-in-law, Melissa Gorga, and her cousin, Kathy Wakile. While there may not be any table-flipping or "prostitution whore" name-calling thanks to Danielle Staub's exit from the show, the family feud between the Giudices and Gorgas takes center stage this summer.

It's no secret that Giudice and Gorga get into it this season. Gorga gave RedEye the scoop on the strained relationship during a recent phone interview.

When Giudice was filming the show in past seasons, it seemed like she never wanted the Gorgas around or on camera, Gorga said. That's why viewers never met Giudice's younger brother, Joe (Melissa's hubby). The only events the Gorgas were invited to, she said, were the kids' birthday parties.

That changed once the Gorgas agreed to do the show, which later this season will give Gorga's budding music career exposure.

"It seems like as soon as she found out we were going to be on the show, it was all of the sudden, 'Well, I love you guys,'" Gorga said. "We'd get texts, 'Can the kids come over?' and she hadn't asked for the kids in three years. We knew what was going on. It was very transparent. ...

"We don't want to call her out to the world, but at the same time we don't want to lie. We want to explain to people why we were bitter, why we're upset with her."

Giudice, during a recent Chicago-area book signing, told RedEye that viewers can expect a "very intense" and "very emotional" season.

"It's very heartbreaking and nothing I expected in a million years. It's like a bad dream," she said. "You'll definitely see a different side to me this year. I think people will get to know me even better."

So what's behind the family drama? Part of it, Gorga said, is that she felt Giudice was competitive with her when she got married.

MORE ON TERESA

Does Giudice think fame and attention have changed her? "No, not at all. I'm still the same person I was, very grounded, very humble. When people meet me, they're like, 'Oh my God, you're so nice.' I'm like, 'That's the way I am.'"

How much Giudice misses Danielle Staub: "She didn't faze me, didn't bother me at all."

Giudice on her future: No more kids, definitely another book and wants to stay in TV.

"I just feel she's kind of one of those people that's born with that envious, jealousy bone in her," she said. "I don't think she's a bad person; I really don't. But I think she can't help herself and she wants everyone to be below her and if you're above her, then she wants you out or she goes for your jugular."

But the tough image, Giudice said, is the biggest misconception viewers have about her, fueled by her flipping a table, yelling at Staub and not taking any crap in past seasons.

"All my friends are like, 'You're so sweet. Nobody knows how sweet you are,'" she said.

This season, the two families work to repair the relationships, going through ups and downs and celebrating the holidays, including Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. Thankfully, the cameras filmed it so viewers can see it all.

But will this storyline have a happy ending? Stay tuned.

MORE ON MELISSA

What Gorga, an aspiring singer, thinks of other housewives' songs: "I don't like to hate on anyone but I'm going to say I know the housewives get a bad rap when they put songs out. But I will guarantee you this music is nothing like that. It's a completely different ballgame. ... Good for them, they made their songs. But this is the real deal."

Gorga's favorite housewife: Lisa Vanderpump from "Beverly Hills."

What Gorga thought of her cast mates: "I love them all. First of all, I'm really close with Kathy because that's my husband's cousin. ... As far as Jacqueline [Laurita] and Caroline [Manzo] go, they were so warm and they were so nice. They welcomed me with open arms."

SUMMER TV FACEOFF

You don't have to feel guilty

Back in April, we asked RedEye readers on Facebook what their favorite TV networks are. While many were named, the majority were networks that program a lot of reality TV.

Bravo. TLC. HGTV. A&E. Logo. Bravo, Bravo, Bravo! (I saw a lot of "Real Housewives" answers.)

Argh! My friends say I'm a TV snob, but honestly, I don't see the appeal in reality TV. Once a camera is on you, nothing you do is "real." I give in a little when it comes to competition reality shows. (I admit it, I could not stop watching the Bronnie season of "Make Me a Supermodel.")

Anyway, give me just a decent scripted drama and I'd watch it over a "Hoarders" or "Platinum Weddings" or "Pregnant in Heels." I want to be entertained, not irritated. I like good storytelling, not showboating.

I think if viewers were given the chance, they might come to their senses and agree with me. They just might start watching TV about which they need not feel guilty.

So, since summer is a time for even more reality TV, I offer this helpful conversion chart for those feeling the guilt (and believe me, you should). I'll list a reality show you probably do or will watch, and then give you a scripted show with similarities you may like to watch. Here goes.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Gemini

May 21-June 21
You could develop a fatal attraction for a toxic yet sexy friend. You'll hook up with an on-again, off-again buddy who craves your body in intense ways. The sun says you'll enjoy this soap opera.

Cancer June 22-July 22

A psychic moon is helping you tune in to your lover. You'll sense your girlfriend's need for hot, unapologetic sex in a public place without her mentioning it.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

A work situation is freaking you out, and you're totally distracted. Meanwhile, your honey wants more of your attention. Jupiter says multitask in a careful way so you don't end up losing your job or your sweetheart.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

A moon opposition has you wondering if this is all that love can offer you. Maybe your partner is turning into a bore, even though he's a nice guy. Hang in there.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You're into balance these days as Saturn increases your need to be mellow. You'll avoid drama queens or lost souls as you seek out cool folks who share your positive view of life. Hang out with some higher life forms.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

Neptune is increasing your obsession with someone. But just because you still have strong feelings for that guy in jail or that girl in the witness protection program doesn't mean the two of you have a future.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

With the sun opposite your sign, don't expect your love life to make sense. Your honey has decided to become a vegan, and you run a steakhouse. Embrace the paradox.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You need to take action before somebody wonderful slips through your fingers. Mars is encouraging you to get over your usual shyness. Sure, you're busy, but love is knocking on your door.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

The moon is increasing your desire to get results. If you're trying to seduce someone, you could grow impatient as schedule snafus delay your ability to hook up with that sexy new friend. Don't lose your cool.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

You're not quite sure how to handle somebody tempting who has crossed your path. Mars is generating intrigue of epic proportions. If you're in a relationship, you could be questioning why you continue to adore somebody with smelly feet or perpetual stink breath.

Aries March 21-April 19

An explosive combination of planets is turning you into sexual dynamite. Wherever you go, you'll cause mayhem. As you stir up chaos in someone's life, you also might win his or her heart. What will you do with it?

Taurus April 20-May 20

Mars in your sign is making you more impatient than ever. If your lover can't find your hot spots, you'll turn to a former flame to give you satisfaction. Or you'll search online for a lusty new friend, stirring up some trouble.

Amanda Tapping as Helen Magnus
SYFY

'Sanctuary'

9 p.m. Monday, Syfy

In somewhat of a departure for the sci-fi series, tonight's "Normandy" episode is set entirely in the past, when immortal Helen Magnus (Amanda Tapping) tries to stop the Nazis from crushing the D-Day invasion. She's joined by other gifted members of "The Five." And by gifted, I mean one's a vampire, one can teleport, one can become invisible and one is beyond genius. You get the idea—it's pure escapist fun. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

Lower Back Pain?

Are You or Someone You Know Suffering From Lower Back Pain?

Northwestern University is seeking volunteers who have lower back pain in order to determine where the pain is recognized in the brain. Participants will also be evaluated to determine why pain goes away for some people while it remains for others. This is a 12 month study consisting of 1 visit at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and 5 MRI scans at Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Olson Pavilion. All visits will take place in downtown Chicago.

Eligible participants must:

- Be 18 years or older
- Have a history of lower back pain which began 4-16 weeks ago with pain radiating into the buttocks or legs
- Be able to undergo a MRI (no pacemakers, metallic implants, or spinal implants)

Please call 312-503-3181 for more information on how you can take part in this research study.

"Glee" star Matthew Morrison arrives for the annual Goodman Theatre gala on Saturday. CHRIS SWEDA/TRIBUNE about last night

LUIS ARROYAVE
larroyave@tribune.com

GOT A TIP?

Do you have a hot tip on a celebrity sighting in Chicago? E-mail Luis or tweet him @luisarroyave.

Ladies' man

Chicks dig boy bands—and 'Glee' star Matthew Morrison

Matthew Morrison would rather forget about his boy band days.

The "Glee" star looked slightly embarrassed when asked about his brief stint in LMNT (pronounced "element") and called that time in his career "a bad story."

So why did he cancel most of the dates on his solo tour last week—including a stop at the Rosemont Theatre on June 21—to take part in the ultimate boy band tour with New Kids on the Block and the Backstreet Boys?

"It's kind of an opportunity I couldn't pass up," the tux-wearing Morrison said Saturday before performing at the Goodman Theatre's "One Enchanted Decade" gala. "I was going to go on a solo tour, but the difference between playing in front of 2,000-3,000 people and 15,000-20,000 was a no-brainer."

"I think [their audience] is kind of my demographic: Women between 18-40."

Morrison's self-titled first album debuted this month at No. 24 on the Billboard 200. It features duets with Elton John, Sting and "Glee" guest star Gwyneth Paltrow.

"It's about the struggles I'm going through now personally," Morrison, 32, said. "Also, it's kind of me in my early 20s in New York City."

If Morrison had stuck with LMNT, which was made up mostly of former contestants on ABC's "Making the Band," is there any chance the pop quintet would still be touring like New Kids on the Block and the Backstreet Boys?

"No," Morrison responded, laughing. "[We] would be defunct."

» For more of Chicago's celeb news, go to chicagotribune.com/luis.

WHERE IS HE?

Saturday's Goodman Theatre performance might have been Matthew Morrison's only appearance in Chicago for a while. Morrison is opening for New Kids on the Block and the Backstreet Boys from July 6-Aug. 7, but not during their show at Allstate Arena on Wednesday or at the United Center on June 17 and 18.

SIGHTINGS

» Beyonce rehearsed for her "Surprise Oprah!" performance at the Lou Conte Dance Studio in Hubbard Street Dance Chicago on May 16 and Tuesday.

» The Miami Heat's LeBron James and Dwyane Wade dined May 16 at Foodlife at Water Tower Place.

» Actor Dennis Quaid, rapper Lupe Fiasco, the Detroit Lions' Matthew Stafford, the Miami Heat's Udonis Haslem and New Jersey Nets coach Avery Johnson dined separately at Gibsons Bar & Steakhouse in the Gold Coast on Wednesday. Quaid hung out at Cuvee later that night.

» Charles Barkley had dinner at Chicago Cut Steakhouse on May 16 and Tuesday, and he had lunch at Wave in the W Chicago-Lakeshore Hotel on Wednesday. Fellow NBA legend Dennis Rodman sang Pearl Jam and James Brown at live band karaoke night at Stanley's Kitchen & Tap in Lincoln Park on May 15.

» Bears quarterback Jay Cutler (above) attended teammate Rashied Davis' charity event at Rokit Bar & Grill in River North on Tuesday and dined at Japonais on Wednesday.

SOME LOVE FOR B

Everyone loves Beyonce. First lady Michelle Obama, Lady Gaga, Bono and Stevie Wonder were among the celebs who honored Beyonce with the Billboard Millennium Award on Sunday at the Billboard Music Awards in Las Vegas. "I love me some Jay-Z," Beyonce declared during her acceptance speech. As for award winners, Rihanna took home female artist of the year, Taylor Swift won country artist of the year and U2 won touring band of the year.

The French have voted, and Brad Pitt is an American idol. "The Tree of Life," an epic movie that stars the male half of Brangelina, won the Palme d'Or prize for best picture at the Cannes Film Festival on Sunday. Meanwhile, Kirsten Dunst won best actress for her work in "Melancholia."

Victoria's Secret supermodel Miranda Kerr, who recently had a son with husband Orlando Bloom, is excited about her fuller figure. "I feel like I've become more of a woman now, and I'm really embracing those curves," she told people.com. Now that's refreshing.

Sayonara, Russell

Apparently Japan really, really didn't like "Arthur." The nation said "no thanks" to Russell Brand, booting the actor from the country Saturday while citing legal incidents from a decade ago, eonline.com reports. But don't worry—he and wife Katy Perry's Twitter fingers were working just fine throughout the ejection.
